

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to: (a) a server for a preferably private communications network having a number of communications units which are networked to one another, and having a first controller for centrally controlling
5 performance features in the communications network; (b) to a communications unit for use with this server; and (c) a method for controlling performance features in a preferably private communications network.

09090828.076304